Hostage suspect connected with bank robbery?

■ Lost tooth reportedly found in get-away car may help show whether a Vallejo man was involved in a West Sacramento bank robbery

By Steve Marschke

Investigators for the FBI are working with local police agencies to determine whether a man arrested after an armed robbery of a Davis food cooperative was involved in the Feb. 20 robbery of West Sacramento's U.S. Bank at Merkley Ave. and Jefferson Blvd.

The bank robbery occurred when two masked, armed men entered the bank during business hours, threatened to shoot and fled with a third suspect in a stolen car, which was later recovered at a Harbor Blvd. motel.

Two days later, on Feb. 22, a pair of armed men entered the Davis Food Co-op on G St. in what shortly turned into a hostage situation. One suspect was captured after the robbers fled.

Lt. Steve Pierce of the Davis Police Department said that the capture of a suspect hiding in a nearby resident's doghouse occurred after shots were fired and the robbers used hostages as a human shield to facilitate their escape.

"Around 10 o'clock that evening, two armed suspects entered the co-op and herded the employees to the rear of the store," said Pierce.

An employee in a rear office managed to dial 9-1-1 to alert police of the robbery -- and then to hang up the phone -- before the gunmen reached his location. Police were on the scene in less than two minutes. They surrounded the store.

After robbing the store, the suspects found out they were surrounded.

"They started to exit through the front, saw the police cars and ran back inside, trying to exit through the back," said Pierce. "They came out shooting and officers returned fire. Then they came out separately each with two or three hostages around them."

The gunmen used the five hostages as human shields until reaching the fences of some neighbors near the store, then abandoned them and leaped into the houses' yards. No one was injured in the shooting.

"We set up a wider perimeter and conducted a house-to-house search," said Pierce. "We found one of the suspects hidden in a doghouse. He had attempted to alter his appearance by dumping his jacket and removing his hair from 'cornrows.' "

Arrested was Ronald Kenneth Martin, 24, of Vallejo. Martin has been uncooperative with investigators, Pierce added. The second suspect has not been located. Davis police have had a number of leads as to his identity, said Pierce, but none have panned out.

GSMS bringing 'Oklahoma' to West Sac

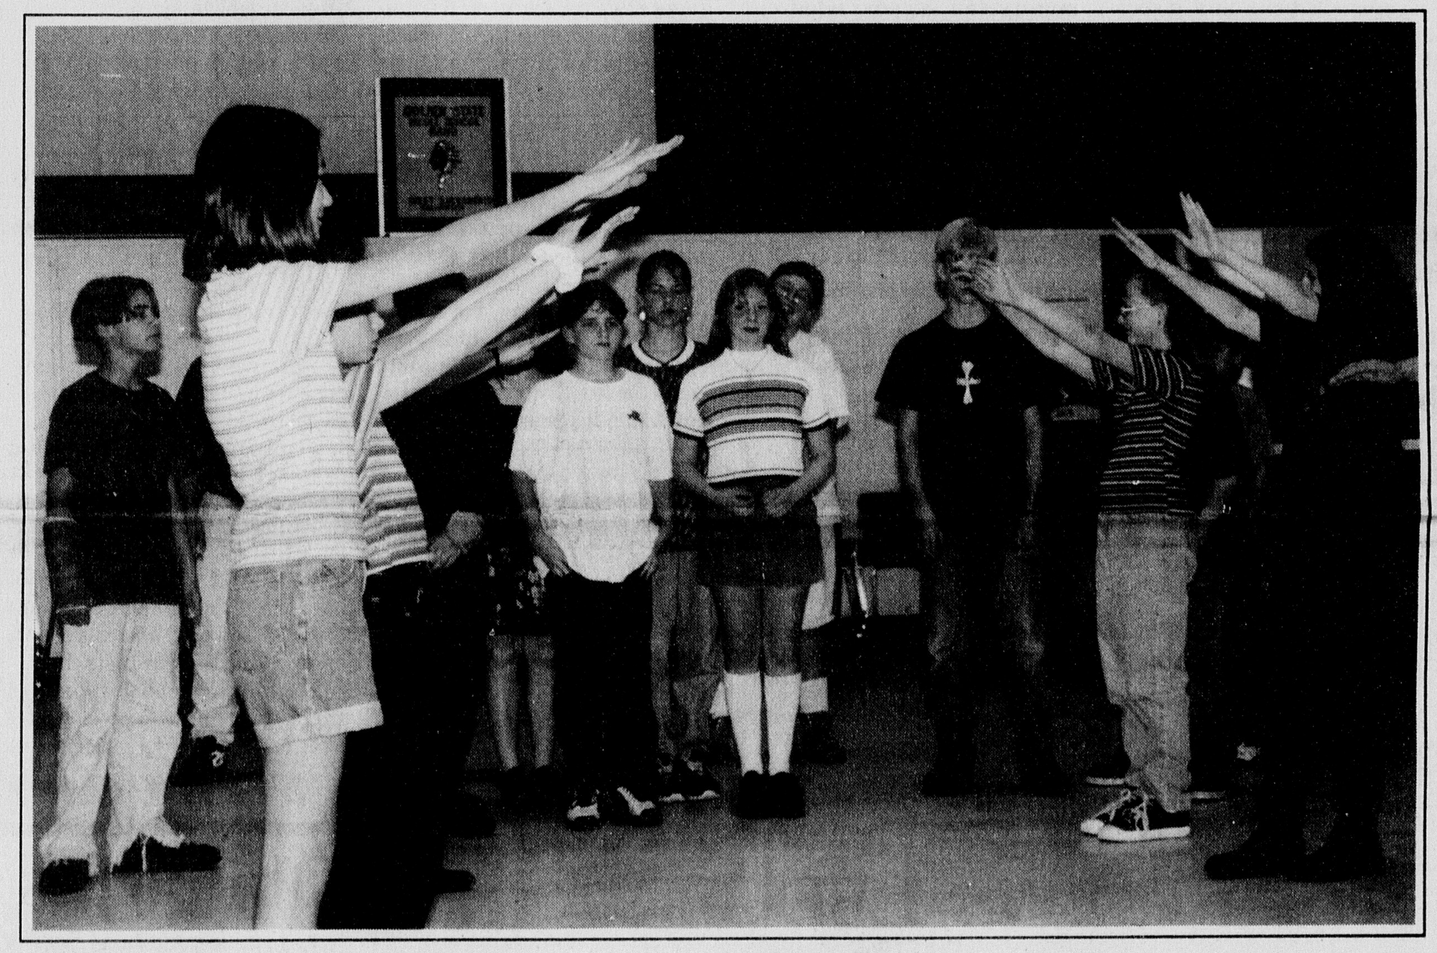
Hot on the heels of the local high school's production of 'The Nerd,' West Sacramento's Golden State Middle School is bringing a production of the musical 'Oklahoma' to the local stage.

The show will run Thursday and Friday, March 27 and March 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Yolo High School auditorium.

Adult tickets are $2 and kids under 18 may enter for $1.

The ambitious musical will be under the direction of Michael Melton, the GSMS vice principal and drama director.

Some of the stars include Brandi Combs as "Laurey," Sarah Penrod as "Aunt Eller," Joel Templin as "Curly," Jacob Brown as "Jeb," Ashley Carroll as "Ado Annie," Alex Matthews as "Will," and Anthony Farnworth as "The Peddler."



Curly (JOEL TEMPLIN) and Laurey (Brandi Combs) prepare to take a stroll down the aisle together in a scene from a non-dress rehearsal of 'Oklahoma,' which GSMS is preparing for the public.

Council to reconsider Pheasant Hollow after court decision

A controversial southern West Sacramento development will come back to the city council tonight with city staff's recommendation for approval.

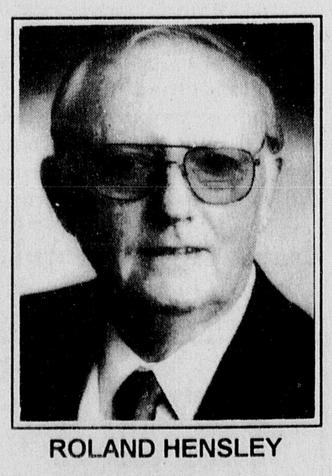
One is the 93-unit, housing and commercial development planned by Lewis Homes for Jefferson Blvd. and Higgins Rd. Yolo County's Superior Court previously ruled on a lawsuit over the "Pheasant Hollow" subdivision, after the city council ruled that the company could not begin construction because of traffic impacts it might bring to Jefferson Blvd. The judge ordered West Sacramento to reconsider its original decision, and city staff is recommending that the council allow construction to proceed.

Staff is recommending that the council set aside its original decision and prepare the groundwork to allow construction of the residential phase of Pheasant Hollow. Attorney's for Lewis Homes have argued that the use of the commercial portion of the site as a short-term "park and ride" facility, and the existence of expanded bus service to Southport (the city's southern half) means that the new houses won't cause further traffic problems on the Jefferson Blvd. corridor.

Absent from duties for several months, councilman hopes health will permit quick return

City council member Roland Hensley, who has been absent from the council dais since November due to health problems, said Tuesday his physical condition is "improving" although recovery from a heart operation is taking longer than expected.

Hensley is also being treated for Parkinson's Disease, and balancing the medication for the two conditions has been a difficulty during Hensley's convalescence at home.



ROLAND HENSLEY

The retired businessman said he will decide soon whether to take up his official duties again.

"I expect to have an answer in the next three weeks, and hopefully I'll be coming back," he commented. "I'd hate to resign, anyway."

Hensley added that doctor's have given him conflicting advice on whether continuing to serve on the council would be good for his health, but that his heart doctor believes it would be good for him to stay involved in city business on the council.

Mayor Greg Potnick said he wishes Hensley a quick return to good health.

"We're looking forward to his speedy recovery and anxiously awaiting his return to the council," said Potnick. "He has a deep perspective on the community and a very strong historical perspective."

The five-person council has been a four-person council in Hensley's absence, but that has so far not resulted in any 2-2 voting deadlocks, said a city staff member.

Man drowns after driving off road

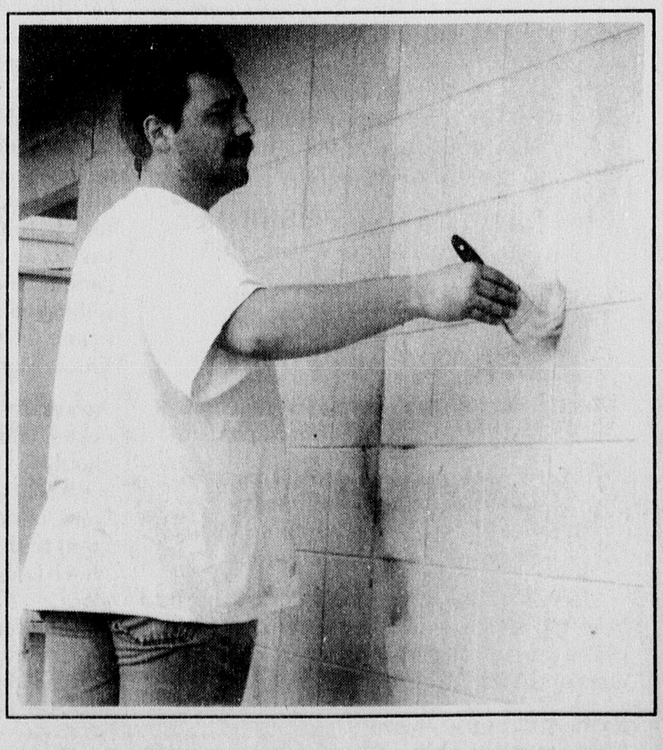
Victim's identity not immediately available pending notification of family

A 40-year old man drove a pickup truck off of South River Rd. into the Sacramento River March 13 and drowned.

The accident occurred shortly after 11 p.m. near Davis Rd.

The man's identity was not immediately available. The vehicle had New York plates.

An all-too familiar task



ADAM COOK, who performs maintenance work for a Todhunter Drive apartment complex, paints over graffiti on an exterior wall Tuesday.

Such graffiti is usually used to advertise and mark territory for local gangs and their members.

Cook said the graffiti is spread 'often enough to be a nuisance' at that location.

I'm no Einstein, but West Sac has an image problem

'T.J. Smoot' is the pen name of a neighbor of yours. His writings appear here every other week.

By T.J. Smoot

I took an informal survey at work asking people what they thought of West Sacramento. Person #1. "Oh, they had a cafe named 'The Feedbag'." Person #2."Where's West Sacramento?" (This was from a person who is familiar with the drive from Thacather to Davis.) Person #3. "I have no opinion of West Sacramento." After additional prodding and the promise of confidentiality, Bert scratched the floor with his shoe and said, "I think West Sacramento is the dirty stepchild of Thacather (The City Across The River)." Now, I'm no Einstein, but I began to think my premise that West Sacramento might have an image problem was really true.

Take this example. The other night some friends dropped by and parked in front of our house. The woman said, "Hi, we can't stay long. We've left our lights on. Will anyone steal our car?" I envisioned a parked car with the headlights blasting dual beams down the street that might annoy my neighbors. But after peeking out the window, I saw the car sitting quietly with its parking lights on. In retrospect, I have no idea why they left their parking lights on. Maybe they were trying to attract local automobile magazine photographers. [I happen to know there are no such photographers within two blocks. All they had to do was ask.] She continued, "Will anyone steal our car?" Unsure if she saw a cause and effect relationship between lit parking lights and stolen cars, I was at a loss for an answer. But I sensed that my friend required an answer to salve her anxious queries. "Yes." I finally answered, smiling. A little later she pressed, "Will anyone steal our car?" I replied good naturedly, "Uh, well...we haven't had our car stolen in over six months." [Not true. It's only been a couple of months since it has been stolen, driven to Cincinnati, stripped of all its valuable imitation wool seat covers, washed, waxed and returned to our driveway in the dead of night without a peep.] A few moments passed, and after some chit chat, the woman asked again. "Will anyone steal our car?" Beginning to feel henpecked, I finally responded. "Did you leave the door unlocked?" "Yes." She shot back, and her eyes widened. "Did you leave the door open?" "No." She shook her head. "Did you leave the keys in the car?" She smirked, somewhat ruffled, "I'm not THAT stupid." I was relieved that she had at least ceased pestering me about her car. A couple more renditions of "Will anyone steal my car?" and I would have taken her questions as a request, walked out to the vehicle right then and stolen it myself to make her happy. At least she would have enjoyed a little panic to satisfy her neurosis. Apparently some people envision our little hamlet as a haven for car thieves. You know, if you drive here, stop and leave your parking lights on, exit your car for a second, stand up, turn around and sneeze, your car is stolen. Just like that.

Image, image. What's in an image? How many of you have chickens in your front yard? When a woman at my work told someone that she lived in West Sacramento, she was asked if she had chickens in her yard. People in other cities have flamingos in their front yards. I guess we're supposed to put up plastic chickens in ours. I must state sadly that, alas, we are part of the non-chic and have no chickens, plastic or real, in our front yard.

But, I must confess that we used to have a chicken in our backyard. Actually, Mrs. Smoot reports that on occasion two chickens used to fly over our fence and do chicken things. It was quite a scene. I could never catch them because they always flew back before I could stick my barbecue forks in their fluffy little behinds. My dog never caught one either, but he always made a good showing. I guess chickens like the front yard because it's safer than the backyard. I mean, most people put their dogs in the backyard, so where else should we put our chickens? IN THE FRONT YARD, OF COURSE! Let's not let anyone make fun of our front yard chickens. Now, if we put our chickens in our backyard, then O.K. call us dumb because the dog would get them. That would be very stupid. That is, unless, you want the dog to get the chickens. Then, keeping chickens in the backyard is pretty darn smart.

Our neighbors tell us that our house used to be inhabited by chickens. Apparently the former owner liked chickens and dogs in the house. I'm unsure what to think about this. Now, did she want the dogs to get the chickens, or did she train her dog to stay away from the chickens, or did the dog and the chickens grow up together and were best buddies like you see on T.V. sometimes? Did any chickens die in the mouths of dogs? I've never seen any poultrygeists around here, and I hope I never do. Until I figure out the former resident's intent, I'm not telling anyone about the history of chickens in our home. After all, I don't want to hazard being thought of as a dumb, backwards hayseed. But this musing now gives me a clue as to why on occasion I have an urge to wake up at the crack of dawn, crane my neck out the window, and let out a "cockadoodle doooooooooooo!"

Raider tennis: 6-0 start could be best in school history

From River City High School

Another week, another pair of victories for River City High School's tennis team. Shutout wins over both Highlands and Lindhurst have sent Raider Coach Dave Brooks scrambling through the record books to find out if this year's 6-0 start is the best in school history. "I've been the head coach since the Fall, 1989 girls team and I know that no team since then has started this way," said Brooks. "I was an assistant for the 1987 co-ed team (13-4 overall record) and Spring, 1989 boys team (10-4) but I'd have to dig up the records on those teams to see if they started this quickly. I'll do it later, though, when the streak if over. Hopefully that won't be for a while." If the Raiders continue to play as they did last week, it will be quite a while indeed.

After three consecutive road matches, RC returned to the home courts to take on Highlands of the Capital Valley Conference on Wednesday. (Tuesday's Golden Empire League opener at Bear River was postponed until today because of rain.) The result was a 7-0 Raider rout. The "closest" match was Ahmand Fazel's 6-2, 6-0 win at #2 boys singles. The girls doubles team of Bethany Monroe and Meuy Saechao, the mixed doubles team of Peter Santizo and Douangchanh Lattasima, and #1 boys singles player Ty Fisher only allowed their opponents one game each. Even better were the results of girls singles players #1 Mirthala Santizo and #2 Khonthavy Phouanglasy, who won 6-0, 6-0.

With the postponement of the scheduled G.E.L. opener at Bear River to today, Thursday's match against Lindhurst became the first league contest. The outcome was the same as the previous day, RC-7, the visiting Blazers-0. Fazel and Peter Santizo won boys doubles 6-1, 6-0; Monroe and Saechao had a "double bagel" in girls doubles and Lattasima teamed with Jeff Wright to earn a hard-fought 6-2, 7-5 win in mixed doubles. The pair was down 3-5 in the second set before coming back. In singles, Fisher allowed his opponent just 2 games at #1, Bounthay Bouttavong struggled in the second set but came through 6-1, 6-4 and Mirthala Santizo and Phouanglasy cruised to easy victories. Amazingly, Phouanglasy has not lost a single game in her last four matches, three played at #2 singles and one in mixed doubles. In her six matches this season, she has given up a total of just three games.

In order for the streak to continue, the Raiders will have to be up to a very difficult task this week with three league contests in a row. A home match versus Marysville on Tuesday is followed by back-to-back road matches at Bear River and Colfax. In 1995, the Bruins were 12-0 in the G.E.L. and Colfax was 10-2. Both return many varsity players and figure to battle with River City and Golden Sierra for the top half of the league standings. Golden Sierra visits West Sacramento next Tuesday, March 26, at 3 p.m.

The Sports Insider

(The News-Ledger accidentally reprinted a previous Sports Insider column last week instead of the column written that week by Richard Novoa. We apologize for the error.)

By Richard Novoa

The Sacramento Kings have 18 games left to play this season and they need to pick up the pace if they want to make the playoffs. The Kings play 10 games at home and eight on the road, but they face 11 teams that made the playoffs last year. The seasons is going to go down to the wire, with the last game of the season against the Golden State Warriors.

The Kings also put Billy Owens, their newest addition to the team, on the injured list with an inflamed foot. Owens joined the Kings on Feb. 22, coming from Miami for Walt Williams. The Kings face the Bucks in Milwaukee on Wednesday, then return home on Friday to play Portland, and Seattle on Sunday.

The Oakland A's will play their first six home games of the 1996 season out of state! That's right, the A's home field (Oakland Coliseum) is being remodeled for the football Raiders. The A's will hit the road for a 14-game road trip that will take them to play in Las Vegas. The A's are offering ticket holders to any of the A's first six home games a full refund or a two-for-one ticket exchange.

Boxing at the Radisson on Monday turned out great for West Sacramento's junior featherweight Willie Jorrin. A paid crowd of 736 watched Jorrin pound out a unanimous ten round decision over Antonio Ramirez of Puebla, Mexico. Willie, 124, improved in record to 12-0 and may be in line for a title fight in May. Gilbert Martinez, 182, who was raised in Bryte, won his bout with a first-round KO of Joel Soni of Tijuana, Mexico. Martinez improved his record to 10-3.

The NCAA tournament is down to the Sweet 16. The 64-team field has been narrowed to 16 finalists, led by three No. 1 seeds: UMass, Kentucky and Connecticut. The final four will be UConn, Kansas, UMass and Kentucky.

See ya next week!!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Mixed bag of comments

A couple of small pats on the back:

The new West Sacramento police car design, which emphasizes black and white and last year replaced the old, milder-looking maroon and white design, looks pretty good.

The cars are more instantly recognizable as law enforcement vehicles, and don't look too much like they belong to the highway patrol.

A source of great controversy, the color scheme seems to have been publicly accepted without bringing about earthquakes, or a plague of locusts, or any of the other disasters we feared might befall us when we monkeyed with the cop car colors.

Have you seen the Chamber of Commerce's new logo, visible on its stationery and elsewhere?

The new, compact design is simple and professional looking, and is a welcome substitute for the chamber's rather complex old image showing several different industries and modes of transportation above an awkward slogan.

Now, if we could only get the city to drop the tag line, "Where efforts and values are focused on the creation of the Premier City of the Sacramento Valley" from all its stationery.

Does anybody think this is taken seriously, either within West Sacramento or without?

Bet on both the Pheasant Hollow subdivision and the new Cheaper store to win approval this time around. Both were denied construction rights when the council debated them on appeal last year.

A Davis man, watching the city council there debate the Mace Ranch residential development last week, remarked that a "development agreement" between a developer and a city frequently resulted in a "what's mine is mine and what's yours is subject to continual re-negotiation" attitude from the developer, as backsliding often begins from the developer even before the ink is dry on the developer agreement.

Mace Ranch was backsliding for at least the third time in its dealings with the city and school district over their development agreement in Davis -- and many of the principals of Mace Ranch are, of course, the same folks bringing us the Southport Industrial Park.

Maybe history won't repeat itself any more here, but remember that bridge those folks were going to pay for if we approved their development?

Or remember Lighthouse Marina, which, many public dollars later, is quite without a marina and is headed towards becoming a private, gated community?

Guest commentary:

Waiting for the sweet sound of bulldozers at Raley's Landing

Les Bowman, Program Manager
West Sacramento Redevelopment Agency

The date for start of construction of the proposed Money Store corporate offices at Raley's Landing appears to be drawing closer. The West Sacramento City Council approved agreements in December 1995 to allow The Money Store building and the remainder of the Raley's Landing project to proceed. Since that time, The Money Store has submitted its building plans to the City, and City staff have reviewed and commented on those plans. Formal signing and execution of all the agreements approved by the Council occurred in early February. Architects, contractors and construction managers for The Money Store are continuing to refine the building's design to achieve maximum efficiency and cost effectiveness, and expect to resubmit the plans to the City for final approval in late March. The Money Store and Raley's also appear close to final agreement on the purchase of five acres of the Raley's Landing project, and close of escrow on the property could occur in a matter of weeks. Close of escrow and the pulling of a building permit are expected to occur almost simultaneously. These two actions, which involve the commitment of a large sum of money, would signal the start of construction.

For the City, start of construction of The Money Store's corporate offices would culminate many years of effort and investment in the revitalization of the City's riverfront. The Money Store headquarters would be a 370,000 square foot office building with an adjacent parking garage. It would be larger than the Renaissance Tower in downtown Sacramento and would house up to 2,000 employees with a payroll estimated at $40 million per year. Overnight, The Money Store would become West Sacramento's single largest employer with its 2,000 employees representing about eight percent of the jobs in West Sacramento. It is estimated that about $3.5 million annually would be spent by employees while at work, creating demand for restaurants, retail and services throughout the City. Some employees would no doubt relocate to West Sacramento, boosting the housing market, including the planned residential areas in Southport. The Money Store's payment of a $750,000 traffic impact fee is a key element of the financing package being put together for the Palamadessi Bridge, which will open Southport up for development.

The start of construction of The Money Store building, which is expected to occur in April or May of this year, will be an exciting event for West Sacramento and will draw attention to the City as a new and attractive location for office development in the region. The start of construction may also bring with it some temporary headaches for nearby residents during the project's eighteen month construction period. Some increased traffic, noise and dust will occur during the construction period. In addition, Third Street will be undergoing a widening and beautification and residents may experience traffic delays and detours associated with that project. All of this appears to be a minor inconvenience, however, in comparison to the tremendous benefit the project will bring to the City.

With The Money Store building in place, the City expects a variety of nearby development to begin to occur. Projects which are likely to follow closely on the heels of The Money Store include construction of a moderately priced hotel, riverfront restaurants and retail, and possible residential construction. The Raley's Landing project is also entitled to construct an additional 575,000 square feet of office space, which is available for another corporate tenant like The Money Store, or possible speculative construction should the office market in Sacramento recover sufficiently. The Money Store project may also be the catalyst which will spur development at the Lighthouse Marina project, which has languished in part because of the relative lack of development activity on the City's waterfront. In support of The Money Store's private sector investment, the City hopes to have funds available to begin construction of the riverfront promenade and park between the Tower and I Street Bridges. If all goes well, the promenade will be completed by the summer of 1997, prior to the occupancy of the building by The Money Store.

In summary, it appears as if this coming summer West Sacramento will enjoy the sweet sound of piles being driven and cash registers ringing from construction workers on their lunch break.

Letters to the Editor

From teachers' union

The Washington Teachers' Association applauds the March 6 editorial for its suggestion that there should be greater community involvement in our local schools. It is true, as the editorial says, that our schools face the challenges of serving a diverse population. Our students are the citizens of the future, and we teachers need all the help we can get from the community. Our schools work best when we all work together.

While we certainly need financial support in the form of passing bond measures and donating materials, our greatest everyday need, is for your time and expertise.

We need members of the business community, as well as the community at large, to spend time on our campuses and in our classrooms. Contact the nearest elementary school and inquire about being a volunteer in a classroom on a weekly basis. Find out what training may be necessary to make you feel comfortable working in a classroom, whether you would be reading to the children, helping with math lessons, playing basketball, or doing an art project with the class.

At the middle school, you can inquire about talking to students about the work you do, about your life experiences, about the types of things students will need to compete in the twenty-first century.

At the high school level, local business and industrial leaders can help teachers identify the skills that students need to develop. Speakers are needed for our career planning curriculum. Students need career mentors and job-shadowing opportunities. If you really want to be a hero, offer summer internships or jobs to our students.

As for donations, we want you to find something that is important to you for our students to have. For example, you could donate materials to make a shop project or science activity possible. You could give schools outdated training manuals for reading and math activities. You could fund a field trip. The teachers want to know what educational experiences the community wants our children to have.

Perhaps more local businesses could look into forming partnerships with the schools in our community. A very successful venture in our district for bringing schools and business together has been the "Adopt a School" program. By working with our students and teachers, you can show that you value education because you are donating your most valuable asset -- your time. In this way, you will find out what individual classes need, and educators will find out what the local community expects.

The best reward from this community involvement will be the pride that comes from working together to educate our children. Those students in our classrooms today will be the adults in this community in the very near future, and they are our hope for the future of West Sacramento.

The Washington Teachers' Association stands ready to work with you.

'Yes' on school prop.

As many West Sacramento citizens have hopefully noticed, the Washington Unified School District trustees and staff have been investing time and money to care for our nine school facilities through repair, painting, and purchase of new equipment. We have also been planning for future building and maintenance need by exploring a variety of funding sources.

I am sure that many West Sacramentans are also aware that these nine schools have been a part of our community for many years. The youngest, Golden State Middle School, is 33 years old! The estimated life span of school facilities is 30 to 50 years. Our oldest, Yolo High, is nearing the 50 year mark, at 46 years. Although the recent coats of paint and repairs have been welcome, it will take much more to modernize our schools. Issues such as wiring for electronic equipment, adequate storage, space for special programs, libraries and computer rooms, improved heating and cooling systems, and much more need to be addressed.

WUSD has already qualified for approximately $11 million in modernization funding from the State. We are currently on a waiting list -- waiting, along with many other school districts, for money which is not yet available.

I am writing to voice my support for Proposition 203, the school bond measure which is one the March 26 ballot. This proposition would provide $2.1 billion in bond funds to help upgrade schools, and .9 billion dollars for community colleges and public universities.

The passage of Proposition 203 would provide much needed assistance for WUSD on the journey toward modernizing. The district would hopefully, depending on funding available, receive funding for the crucial first step of planning the needed facility improvements.

WUSD has the staff and the vision capable of preparing West Sacramento's children for the 21st century. We need to provide the students and staff with facilities which can support, not hinder this process. It is my sincere hope that, as a board member, I will soon be able to approve the acceptance of funding from the state to start us on this important journey forward.

Teachers need. . .

The March 6 editorial posed the question, "What do teachers need?" As an English teacher with 20 years experience (14 in the district), I welcome the opportunity to respond by focusing on what the district and its teachers can do.

First, we need to make the teaching of the basics -- reading, writing, and math -- our priority. We can demonstrate this priority by the amount of time we allocate for the teaching of these basic subjects, and our willingness to insure that teachers have the necessary support in terms on training, materials, and resource staff to teach these skills.

At the middle school we have a six period day in which the following classes are provided: math, English, history, science, P.E. and exploratory. All classes are year-long with the same teacher except for exploratory classes which change every 20 days. Consequently, students have one period for their instruction in reading and writing. It is very difficult to address the needs of students in these areas in one 50 minute period per day, especially when 60-70 percent of students are reading below grade level and the size of the class is hovering between 30-33. Further, as a secondary teacher, my training in the teaching or reading was quite limited. It was presumed that students at the secondary level would know how to read adequately, an assumption we can no longer make.

In response then to the question, "What do teachers need?", I suggest the following:

1. We concentrate first on teaching the basics;

2. We give teachers more time to do so

a. reinstating a two-period language arts core class at the middle school is a place to start;

3. We give teachers updated training on the teaching of reading (something the district is working on for next year);

4. We provide teachers with a resource person, a reading specialist, at each site (Golden State's reading specialist is part-time now because she has been used to pick up sections of English and exploratory classes two periods a day and can no longer serve the needs of 7th and 8th grade students, two-thirds of our population);

5. We provide teachers with the materials necessary: reading and writing texts, including a grammar book, novels, books for independent reading, composition books for journal writing, etc. (the availability of materials varies site by site due to funding sources).

As the editorial noted, there are many challenges to face. However, we also have dedicated teachers and a district administration able to meet these challenges.

Bus service answer:

I am submitting this letter in response to the Margia Jacobs letter printed in the News-Ledger on Wednesday, March 6, regarding Yolobus' recent Line 39 Midday Service change. Ms. Jacobs seems to have some concerns about the public hearing process for Yolobus service changes. Please accept the following as responses to her criticisms:

1. Two public hearings were held regarding Line 39 Midday service, the first at the City of West Sacramento City Council Chambers and the second at a regularly scheduled Yolo County Transit Authority Board Meeting (also allowed mail and phone comments); and

2. Confirmed by both myself and the Yolo County Transit Authority's Meeting Attendance Roster, Ms. Jacobs attended the City of West Sacramento public hearing on December 5, 1995. All proposed Line 39 changes were identified and discussed at both public hearings;

3. Public notices regarding Line 39 changes were published in the News-Ledger on November 22 and 29, 1995, as well as posted on Yolobus buses that serve the City of West Sacramento; and

4. YCTA sought Line 39 service change approval from the City of West Sacramento City Council, at a regularly scheduled Council meeting on December 13, 1995 (Agenda Report Item #15); and

5. All Yolobus service changes, including Line 39, are posted in Yolobus buses 7-10 days prior to any service changes and are clearly identified in the Yolobus schedules, which are available and free to the public.

Sugar dangers

Most people know that consuming sugar will destroy your teeth, but few realize that sugar destroys other parts of the body as well.

We are told by the "experts" that adult diabetes is caused by being overweight and being older. Then why is it in third world countries where sugar is unavailable that diabetes is non-existent regardless of whether a person is overweight or is older.

A study made in South Africa with children found the blood sugar levels of native black children whose diet is sugarless are less than half that of white children that eat a Western diet loaded with sugar. Obviously children don't have an age problem and few children are overweight. Eating sugar slowly destroys the human body, just as smoking does -- bit by bit.

Unfortunately, the more poisonous a substance is to the body, the more the government subsidizes its production. Tobacco growers receive eight-hundred dollars an acre to grow their product and sugar producers get nearly five-hundred dollars an acre from Uncle Sam to grow their poison.

There is a way out of this problem. Artificial sweeteners are used in some products. There is fructose made from fruits that can be used but its too expensive for general use. Ultimately the answer is to use high fructose corn syrup which is made from corn starch and is competitive in price with sugar.

Spreckels sugar, a long-time California company, recently got out of the sugar business -- maybe they saw the handwriting on the wall.

The fair's theme this year is "Oink You Glad You Came." Most categories are open to residents of Yolo, Colusa, Solano, Sutter and Yuba counties.

Wood craftsmen's club includes programs geared to beginning artists

The Nor-Cal Woodturners will display turned objects at the Davis Branch of the Yolo County Library, 315 East 14th Street, Davis, from April 1-12. The exhibit will be displayed in three cases in the library. A wide range of wood turnings will show the artistic talents of the club members.

The Nor-Cal Woodturners, a 75-member group affiliated with the American Association of Woodturners, meets monthly to share turning techniques, wood, design, and to discuss their turnings. Programs are presented by members as well as guest turners. Hands-on workshops for beginners through advanced turners are held frequently.

The meetings are held the fourth Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. at the Sacramento Municipal Utility District (SMUD) building on the corner of Don Julio and Elkhorn in Sacramento.

For more information, call Everette Beckwith in West Sacramento, at 372-0113.

Images of Yolo in art are sought

From University Arboretum
University of California, Davis

Researchers at U.C. Davis and the Yolo County Historical Museum are asking county residents to look through their attics and basements to help track down early images of the Yolo County landscape. Heath Schenker, Assistant Professor of Environmental Design, and Diane Cary, Program Director at the Davis Arboretum, are working with Monica Stengert of the Historical Museum.

"We're interested in any kind of image of the landscape," said Cary. "We'd especially like to find paintings, drawings, or advertisements from before 1940, and any kind of hand-made objects like quilts, needlework, carvings, or china painting, from any time period including the present. We're also interested in post cards and tourist souvenirs showing scenes from Yolo County." These objects will be used for research and also may be included in an exhibit planned for the Yolo County Historical Museum this May, to be called "Picturing Yolo County: Images of the Landscape, 1850 to 1996."

Until recently, Yolo County had rarely been the subject of landscape paintings. "Even painters from Yolo County would travel to Yosemite or to the coast to paint," said Schenker. "Pictures say a lot about the value people place on landscapes. What scenes they choose to picture and how they show them reflect the aesthetics and economics of the day, and also can have a lot of influence on what others think about a place."

Anyone who has a painting or other image of Yolo County is asked to call Diane Cary at 752-4880, Heath Schenker at 752-7681, or Monica Stengert at 666-1045.

The Sacramento River registered 13 feet 2 inches U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday.

The masquerade ball held in the Town Hall last Saturday evening and known as St. Patrick's ball, was a pronounced success in every particular. The hall was crowded as it never was before and the masquerers enjoyed themselves thoroughly. Those not wearing masks were not permitted on the dancing floor before the prizes were awarded. Many new costumes were seen and very tasty effects were shown in the skill of several women who had made an effort to win prizes. The Volunteer Firemen were highly pleased with the magnificent turnout made by the property owners of the town. The net proceeds have not yet been figured, but are estimated at a neat sum. The primary cause advanced by the firemen for the dance, that of securing more and better equipment, prompted the sale of many tickets that were not used. For the best dressed couple, first prize was awarded to Doris Norton and Lillian Lear. The prize waltz was awarded to C. Harms and Mrs. J. O'Brien. For the best sustained character a prize was awarded to Fleming Peek and the booby prize was taken by Mrs. Belle Porter in the character of a "blind beggar."

Miss Sylvada McDonald is out and around after a very severe sick spell brought on by "flu." She will return to her work in the S. P. freight office at the end of this month.

Mrs. M. F. Case, mother of Professor Case, returned to her home in Chico last Monday after a week's visit at the home of her son. Prof. Case has received word from his brother-in-law, Charles Coupe, that he arrived at his home a few days ago after many months at the front, during which he saw hard fighting and great hardships.

N. K. Eldred appeared before Judge Barry last Tuesday on complaint that he allowed his horse to run loose in Riverbank. He explained that the horse had been staked, but had broken his rope. Under the circumstances his sentence of fifteen days was suspended on promise that a stronger rope would hold the horse in future.

Judge Barry is in receipt of a letter from his son Dave advising that he will leave Aveze, France, any time between March 15th and 31st. His company has been engaged in making the roads in his locality passable, but the boys have been badly hampered with cold and wet weather. He said also that his cousin "Duke" Fourness paid him a visit of two days and that they enjoyed the time wonderfully, reciting old experiences before and during the war. Duke was the second Washington boy Dave met since he left his home for Camp Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Todhunter celebrated their silver wedding last Saturday night at their home on 3rd street. A great number of relatives and friends were present to wish them good luck. Many appropriate and beautiful presents were received by them on this occasion. It was a gala time and the participants were as happy as on their wedding day. Over 50 people were present. After partaking of a bounteous feast prepared by Mrs. Todhunter the guests danced till a late hour the following morning.

Royce Jones is home from the front without a scratch, although he was in actual conflict during five days before the armistice was signed.

A joke was current on the streets in Washington yesterday that the legislature had passed a law making it a misdemeanor to pick mushrooms without first securing a license from the Fish and Game Commission. Nobody was surprised and the only regrets expressed were that the licenses did not go to the Market Commissioner instead of to the Fish and Game octopus. There is no knowing what fool laws may not be enacted by the present session of the legislature. A law against mushrooming would be disastrous in this locality because the Sacramento markets get all their supplies of the popular fungus from this section of Yolo County.

C. A. Painter is rejoicing in the possession of a new Dodge touring car which he bought a few days ago and with which he has challenged Percy Hart for a race with the "Bullet." The event will take place on the concrete road on Second street between Elizabeth and Margaret streets.

Last Wednesday night 150 bean bags were stolen from the Leinberger sloughter house west of town. Constable Buckingham is tracking some suspected criminals.

A few days ago Lieutenant Colonel H. H. Brown of Sacramento cabled his family that he was on the high seas on his way from France. With him Lieutenant Pagnello is returning to his home here. Word is expected that they may land any moment at New York and get their discharges at the Presidio.

"Whiskey is a divil when it isn't used right," said a Japanese to Constable Buckingham last Tuesday. The previous evening he was robbed of eighteen cases that he had stored in his ranch house near Lake Washington, and from which he expected to make some good money very soon. The Constable is on the track of several Irishmen who knew that the whiskey was good and who heard it had been hidden away by the Jap.

Pat Mulholland reported to Constable Buckingham yesterday that his watch had been stolen from his scow near the mouth of the American River. He could give but a slight description of the watch outside of the fact that the case was of silver.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Peek went to San Francisco last Sunday to visit their son, Leland, who is confined in the Letterman Hospital recovering from the effects of poison gas. Leland was at the front for several months but was not wounded in any battle. He is recovering rapidly and may be expected home soon.

Rudolph Binse writes that he has been down with "flu" at Toul, France, but is recovering.

Mrs. C. M. Bowlen is recovering at her home in Riverbank from an operation she underwent last week at a Placerville hospital. Her husband remained with her for a week following the operation.

The Bluebird Club, an organization consisting of many of the children of Riverbank, met last Saturday night at the home of Mrs. Hayward Reed. Games furnished the entertainment of the evening and later refreshments were served. The next meeting of the club will be held on the afternoon of Easter Sunday, when the children will gather again at the Reed home.

The Red Cross, which has not met for several weeks, resumed meeting today at the school house at 1 o'clock. A business meeting will precede the sewing session, which later will be held under the direction of Mrs. Harry C. Bell, sewing director.

The members of the Volunteer Fire Department of Riverbank are making strenuous efforts to make their dance a great success. They are laying particular stress on the fact that the date was changed from March 31st to April 5th.

Marshall Stockton is confined to his home following a collision with an auto several days ago while he was riding his bicycle. He is recovering.

The Parent-Teachers' Association held an important meeting in the school building last night. Several important matters were discussed that mean a great deal to the parents of the town.

The Anti-Saloon League aims to have a candidate in the next Presidential election and is grooming a preacher for the job.

Won't that be nice?

The preacher can act as Chaplain to the Senate and the House of Congress and at all public functions.

GREAT SHIPMENTS OF RICE ARE BEING MADE FROM MILLS LOCATED IN WEST SACRAMENTO

With both rice mills located in West Sacramento working at nearly capacity, vast quantities of the California food product are being turned out under the control of the United States Government.

Most of these are being shipped to outside points, although not a little of the California rice is being distributed throughout the United States.

The National Rice Mills, under the direction of G. A. Morse, are just about completing the shipment of 40,000 bags. Of this quantity 20,000 bags were forwarded to Port Costa for transshipment to Belgium and other European countries and 20,000 bags were sent to New Orleans for distribution in Cuba and Porto Rico.

The price of rice, of course, is fixed by the government. The buying is done by Government agents and the selling is directed by the food authorities. The mills are allowed a percentage for the use of their plants, machinery and for the wages paid to men in the establishment.

G. A. Morse, Superintendent and Manager of the National Rice Mills, says there remains about 35 per cent of the California crop yet in the hands of the growers, while about 65 per cent has been taken care of in the various mills throughout the State.

Mr. T. J. Garvey, manager of the California State Rice Milling Co. mill has just finished the shipment of 26,000 bags to Port Costa, presumably for transshipment to Belgium and other European countries. This mill is now working a force of sixty men and running 24 hours per day.

The shipment mentioned above is only a part of the output of this great concern.

The California State Rice Milling Company contemplates considerable improvement and additions in the near future. It is estimated that within the next 60 days a large warehouse measuring 350 by 150 feet will be started. That question is now up to the Board of Directors for consideration with a likelihood of early action and an early start on the building.

It is presumed that government control of the mills will be released as soon as the crop of 1918 is disposed of and the mills will be at liberty to handle the 1919 crop without interference.

It is interesting to note that at this writing there are employed in the various industries located in West Sacramento not less than 350 men. These men receive an average wage of about 50 cents per hour, running the monthly payroll up to about $35,000.

SCHOOL TRUSTEE ELECTION LIVELY IN RIVERBANK

A successor to Mrs. M. L. Manchester as School Trustee in Washington has not made announcement of candidacy to this date although the election will take place on March 28th.

In all likelihood there will be one or more candidates for the place, but intending entrants are waiting for announcements from others.

It is different in Riverbank. J. B. Lee and Dorma L. Freese are candidates to succeed C. M. Bowlen in that school district.

For the election in Washington officers have been named as follows: Inspector, N. L. White; Judges, Mrs. J. McNevins and Mrs. S. T. Rickard.

Mrs. Manchester has positively declined to be a candidate because she "believes she did her share and wants to see some other person take hold to do their share."

Election is on March 28th. A declaration of intention to be a candidate must be filed five days prior to that date.

General Pershing advises the Legislature of the State of Nevada, "I am deeply touched that Nevada has created a new county and named it in my honor."

If he only saw the county created, he'd be sorry for himself.

Meet the candidates

The News-Ledger contacted as many of the candidates involved in contests for local races in the March 26 ballot as possible, and invited them to submit a brief statement introducing themselves. Here are their replies.

For Congress, 3rd District: Incumbent Vic Fazio, D.-West Sacramento, faces only token opposition from within his party in the person of Rodger McAfee, who is not actively campaigning. Republicans will choose from the following pair to oppose Fazio in November:

Tim LeFever, Republican for Congress

In 1994 I stated that the third congressional district, a geographically diverse area covering all or part of eight counties, was not receiving the representation it deserved in Washington. It needed a representative who had lived in northern California, and had an appreciation for the agricultural, military, educational and business interests reflected here. I said that our needs would be better served by a conservative businessman, than by a liberal long-term politician.

Soon, I found I was not alone in my call for new leadership in this congressional district. The strength of that message was made clear in the results of the 1994 election. While being outspent seven to one, I came within 3 points of defeating Vic Fazio.

When all votes were counted, I had won in six of the eight counties.

Since the 1994 election, I have continued the drive for change. I have continued to share a vision of the America where I wish to have my three children grow up. And I have set an agenda for America's future that echoes the concerns I hear expressed while traveling throughout this region.

I am committed to assuring that we balance the federal budget so our children will enjoy their chance at the American dream, instead of picking up the bill for our living that dream. I am committed to saving Medicare from looming bankruptcy, and to fulfilling the broken promises of welfare reform and middle class tax relief.

I would appreciate your encouragement, support, and your vote on March 26.

Charles Schaupp, Republican for Congress

Elected officials must deal with divisive issues without taking extremist positions. Vital concerns such as water and property rights, the economic health of our District, and local control of local issues need to be dealt with in a flexible, focused and fair manner. While traveling from Solano to Tahema counties, I have found that as a farmer, business person and U.S. Marine Corps reservist, I understand my home district. I am Charles Schaupp and I am running for Congress in the 3rd District.

We have many concerns in this valley, but several take center stage. For farmers and farm-related businesses, we must protect our water rights; use of our ground water is essential to our growth, prosperity and culture. As a 15 year member of the U.S. Marine Corps Reserves and Desert Storm commander, I have learned about leadership, honesty and compassion. I understand the impact of base closures on this District's economy and Sacramento in particular, and I plan to work towards privatization, job creation, and business opportunities.

As a school board president, I know we need to replace our current bureaucracy with local control, especially in education. The elected representatives on local school boards are best informed to make decisions; the same people who live, work and raise their families within the school district.

Fair practices, rational responses and workable solutions are what I will bring to Washington.

Charles Schaupp is an Esparto resident who serves as president of his town's school board. His family farms for a living.

For State Assembly, 8th District (replacing Tom Hannigan, D.-Fairfield at the end of his term), Harold Helbock, a Vacaville pediatrician is running as a Libertarian. The Democrats and Republicans offer the following choices to their party members to send to the November election (Republican Ray Schoch could not be reached for a statement):

Helen Thomson, Dem. for Assembly

My goals for the Assembly include the strengthening of public education, improving health care, the revitalization of our local economies, creation of industry and job opportunities, and the development of public transportation.

Reforms in public education must include reduced class size and greater local autonomy. California schools have been slipping. Parents and local communities need more power and resources in preparing California's children for the next century.

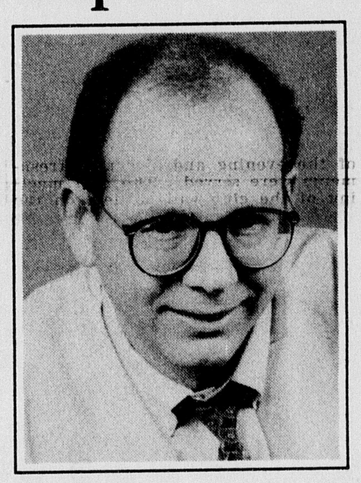
Reform of the health care industry is critical. As a registered nurse, I will bring my understanding and experience to the legislature. Quality health care must be maintained while increasing affordability and access to all citizens. We must not allow managed care to become a vehicle for reducing quality of care and limiting access.

Local economies must be revived. My service as a Yolo County Supervisor has reinforced my belief in the expansion of decision-making power at all levels. The Assembly must concentrate on the creation of new employment opportunities. A strong tax base and economic growth are needed to make our communities vital again. We must ensure our local businesses not only survive, but prosper and flourish.

Expansion of public transportation systems will create jobs, decrease traffic congestion, and improve air quality. Having served as chair of the I-80 Strategic Transportation study, I am convinced that commuter rail services such as the "California Cars," now in service to 12 stations, are vital additions to the public transportation system. California's Assembly needs new leadership with a track record of producing results. I look forward to the challenge.

Helen Thomson is a Yolo supervisor and a Davis resident.

Ed Schlenker, Repub. for Assembly



I know how hard people work to pay their taxes. That's why I have used my post as County Supervisor to wage war on government waste.

As Supervisor, I've saved millions of tax dollars by consolidating county offices, cutting bureaucratic waste and opposing perks for politicians. I'll do the same at the State Capitol.

I believe government should be smarter. That's why I have advocated increased use of performance audits -- to identify and prevent costly problems before they get out of hand.

I'm not afraid to makes waves or buck the power-brokers. That's why I opposed increases in car allowance, mileage, and daily living allowances for elected officials. I'll take that same cost-conscious approach at the State Capitol.

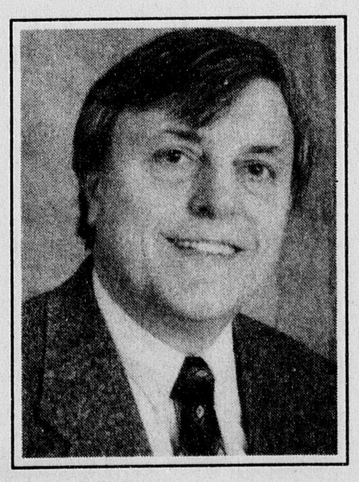
Our counties spend more money on welfare than on transportation, education and law enforcement combined. That has to stop.

It doesn't make sense to spend millions on programs that benefit single, able-bodied men when the newspaper is stuffed with help wanted ads.

When the State of Michigan eliminated General Assistance payments, the experts predicted dire results. What really happened? Studies showed many recipients were working black market jobs and getting assistance in other programs. The cuts saved millions of dollars without any apparent damage.

Join my war on government waste. Call 1-800-300-1950 with your thoughts on how we cut government down to size.

Dominic De Bellis, D. for Assembly



West Sacramento has a unique situation in our assembly district. Its position in Yolo County while in reality a part of Sacramento is a difficult one. Therefore, I pledge as assembly person to make extra effort to listen to and act on the concerns of West Sacramento's businesses and residents.

I have five legislative priorities:

1. Reduce average class size in California K-12 schools.

2. State master plan for growth whereby growth and distribution of sales tax revenue becomes more balanced.

3. Keep affirmative action alive focused on income and residence. Thirty years of reconciling does not rectify three hundred years of abuse.

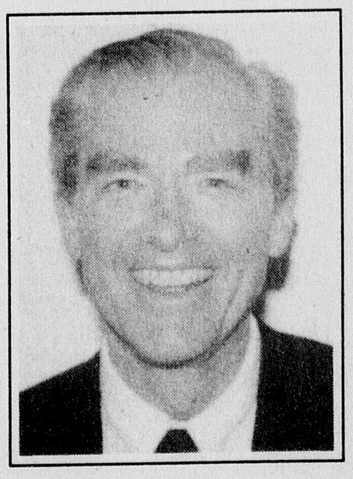
4. Garamendi style state health plan financed by payroll tax.

5. Uninsured motorist plan paid for "at the pump."

Put the "I" back in politics, not "I" for ego, but "I" for Integrity.

Wishing you sound mind, sound body.

Vigfus Asmundson, R. for Assembly



I have lived in this Assembly District since my birth in 1936. I graduated from Harvard Law School and have practiced law in Yolo, Solano, and Sacramento counties since 1963, with my office in Sacramento.

In 1968, I was elected to the Davis City Council for four years, serving as Mayor in 1970-72. I left the council to marry and my wife and I have four daughters. Now that my youngest daughter is a junior high school, I would like to return to public service.

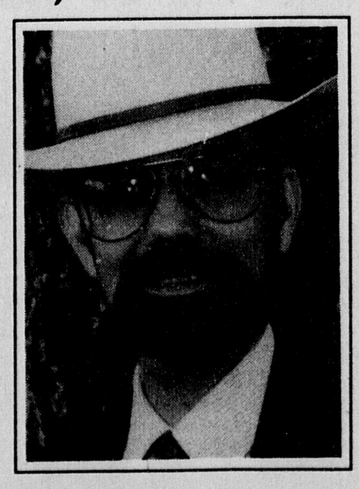
I want to reverse the centralization of government that began with Proposition 13. The local county, city, and school district governments should have direct control of their finances and operations, to make them accountable to the local voters.

I also want to preserve agricultural land. In counties with high quality agricultural soils, I will seek to limit subdivision development to land that is an extension of an existing incorporated city. Compromising agricultural land by leap-frog developments is a catastrophe for our agricultural heritage.

I also believe that the state legislature will benefit from return to a part-time organization. All too often, the work of the legislature is limited to raising campaign funds and seeking appointments to government boards or commissions that will enhance or continue the legislator's state compensation and benefits.

Term limits have reduced this abuse, and making the legislature part-time will help legislators remain in touch with the real world of making a living.

Mark Robinson, R. for Assembly



I've been an independent businessman for 20 years, spent 36 of my 52 years in Solano, Yolo and Sacramento counties, and been married 26 years. I understand the district's needs. I own a software company which produces and sells financial planning software nationwide and am very familiar with the tax code!

We're suffering from overtaxation, overgovernment and a decline in order, civility and moral character. I've a clear idea of these problems and some creative, original solutions for them. I've a passion and a vision that I have an obligation to share.

Instead of criminals paying a so-called debt to society, they should be made to pay their debt to the individual they've victimized. The current system does not provide for individual justice. Simply imprisoning people does not teach them a moral lesson.

We must make able welfare recipients work, end "affirmative action" which handicaps some to benefit others, insist on effective border control, give government benefits only to legals, end over-regulation of business, encourage home businesses, enact strict youth curfews, end prison as health spa, fund neighborhood watches, train and organize police auxiliaries, encourage arms bearing by law-abiding citizens, respect the environment not worship it, protect the unborn, sell most State and Federal land to the people, and restore the Federal-State Constitutional power balance.

I'm looking forward with enthusiasm and joy to the challenges ahead: first the nomination, second the general election, third the trust of governing. Join me in this worthy effort. Together we will prevail!

The first district seat of the Yolo County board of supervisors is also on the March 26 ballot. Incumbent Mike McGowan of West Sacramento is running unopposed.

UCD health study on women

From University of California, Davis

Only 18 months remain for women from the greater Sacramento Valley to join the Women's Health Initiative (WHI) at the UC Davis Medical Center. Funded through the National Institutes of Health (NIH), this study began in 1993 and was the brainchild of Dr. Bernadine Healy, only the second woman director of NIH. WHI's main goal is to research the effects of hormone replacement therapy on heart disease and diet on breast cancer. Both of these questions have been the subject of intense scientific debate for several years, without begin resolved.

WHI is the largest and most comprehensive study ever undertaken, with 164,500 women scheduled to participate nationwide for 8 to 12 years. "So far, over 2,000 women from Sacramento and the surrounding counties have joined WHI since the UC Davis School of Medicine clinic opened in 1993; and over 30,000 women have enrolled nationally," said internist and WHI principal investigator Dr. John Robbins. "When the recruitment period ends, a total of 3,650 women will be enrolled at the clinic."

Study leaders are particularly targeting women in their 60s and 70s. "As women enter their 60s and 70s, their risk of serious illness and disability increases," said Mary Haan, Ph.D., co-principal investigator for WHI and director of the University of California, Davis Center for Aging and Health, "but more than 50 percent of women live beyond age 85. This means women in their 60s and 70s can face a long period of disability and chronic disease. WHI is trying to find out how to prevent major chronic conditions and ensure a high quality of life for these women. We don't know whether modifying the diet or taking hormone replacement therapy can help to prevent breast cancer or heart disease in this age group. WHI will take us a long way to the answers."

According to Haan, WHI is really four studies in one: the clinical trial will include 64,500 women in tests of dietary modification and breast cancer, hormone replacement therapy and heart disease and calcium/vitamin D supplementation and osteoporosis; the observational study will follow 100,000 women to study an even wider variety of women's health issues.

"There are still many questions among physicians about whether hormone replacement therapy can help prevent heart disease in women in their 60s and 70s," said Robbins. "The data and the findings generated from the Women's Health Initiative will provide women with more and better information to help improve their quality of life.

WHI is being conducted at 40 clinical centers nationwide. To participate, women must be between the ages of 50 and 79, be past menopause, or the "change of life," and plan to live in the area for at least three years. Women interested in more information about the Women's Health Initiative are encouraged to call (800) 54-WOMEN.

ever, is the fact that suspect Ronald Martin is missing a tooth. Two law enforcement sources stated that a tooth was found in the get-away car used for the U.S. Bank robbery two days before the Davis robbery -- possibly embedded in a piece of candy -- but that fact could not immediately be confirmed.

West Sacramento police referred comment to the F.B.I., and an F.B.I. official reached last week referred comment to the Davis Police Department -- which directed further questions to the F.B.I.

Suspects in both robberies were African-American men, however, and Martin is African-American.

He is being charged with attempted murder, armed robbery, kidnapping during a robbery, false imprisonment, the use of hostages as a shield, and the use of a gun in commission of a felony.
